

Beyond Stigma: Bringing the Conversation About Mental Illness Forward
Conversations at The Carter Center
Feb. 19, 2013

Watch the permanent webcast of this event at www.CarterCenter.org.

Rebecca Palpant Shimkets, M.S.

Assistant Director, The Rosalynn Carter Fellowships for Mental Health Journalism

Rebecca Palpant Shimkets is assistant director for the Rosalynn Carter Fellowships for Mental Health Journalism of the Carter Center Mental Health Program. Ms. Shimkets also is an active participant on advisory boards and within national work groups related to stigma and accurate portrayals of mental illnesses in the media. Ms. Shimkets received her

Beyond Stigma: Bringing the Conversation About Mental Illness Forward
Young Adults & Mental Illness: Key Facts
Feb. 19, 2013

One half of all lifetime cases of mental illness begin by age 14, three quarters by age 24.¹ But research has shown that early intervention for children and adolescents developing a mental illness can make a big difference in their overall health as an adult².

More than half of young adults who have dropped out of college cite a mental health reason for not attending³. According to a national survey, 58 percent of students indicated that seeking counseling helped them remain in school and 63 percent indicated that counseling helped them improve their academic performance⁴.

Suicide is the third leading cause of death among 18-24 year olds and is the second leading cause of death for college students⁵